Best answer: Yes, in the first levels Call of Duty: Mobile will play bots on you. You will mainly fight with bots for your first levels until they drop you into real players around level 10. Call of Duty: Mobile quickly became the world's largest mobile game, reaching 20 million players in just two days. However, many players began to suspect that there could be bots in the game, helping new players find their feet when they start. So far, Activision has not confirmed or denied the existence of bots on the lower steps of the game's multiplayer mode. However, it seems that their first game is almost entirely against bots, which is a shame for my 7.2 death/death ratio. As you slide to rank 10, you will constantly play against a few more players each time. After that, based on our rough experiments, at least you get to have matches against only human opponents from level 10 onwards. Robo recall Putting bots in multiplayer games is not a new idea. PUBG Mobile plays you against only AI players for your first few matches to make you feel powerful. This method allows you to get the hang of things before facing the veterans. Supposedly similar to Fortnite Season 11, which will put players against bots so they can learn the game without being killed by a hyperactive 14-year-old, PUBG Mobile and Call of Duty: Mobile were produced in collaboration with China's Tencent. PUBG Mobile bot players have been praised as a good way for players to dive in and learn the game. Honestly, Call of Duty: Mobile bots are just as interesting. I didn't know I was playing against bots during my initial foray. It wasn't until I looked at the scoreboard at the end of the game that something wouldn't add up. I'm fine, but I'm not necessarily that good. So if you think you're playing too well to be true, you may just be stepping into bots. The Mobile Infantry Call of Duty Mobile brings all the chaos and excitement of console versions to the phone's form factor, with many modes, weapons and maps to choose from. PUBG Mobile doesn't support Bluetooth drivers, so this phone grip is the next best thing. It gives you more comfortable control on your phone for extended gaming sessions. I always recommend this ventie battery because it is so compact and convenient. You get a built-in USB-C cable, AC pin to charge the device and battery capacity of 6000mAh. If you're looking to buy in premium Royal Pass, you need some credit to buy a Change Change ID or want to play some dough on some cosmetics, buying a Google Play Gift Card is a good way to keep your PUBG Mobile spending under control.
